Burns told the clerk of the court when he applied for the warrant that his wife did not deny to him that she hal done what he charged, but alleged in excuse that he falled to aupport her properly. He felt the most aggrieved in the case of his youngest daughter, Bella, for whom, he alleged his wife received a gold watch and chair.

The girls were present in court to-day at the examination of their forther, and denied the statement of their father in toto. Kitly, the eldest, declared that he father was a drunkard. The charge of assault against young Burns was adjourned for trial.

In support of his charges against his wife Burns produced the following letter to his daughter Kitly, which is said to the written by a prominent business man of New York. The handwriting is excellent, and the writer is evidently a person of culture:

Mr. Deacon said he would gladly accept a compromise in order to spare his wife the ignominy in standing in the dock at Aix, and would allow her to keep the baby so long as she led a moral life, but he doubts whether she would keep her word. Possibly an arrangement will be effected before Dec. 8, when the case opens at Afr. Mrs. Deacon's brother has written a letter to the representative of the Associated Press. stating that under the advice of her lawyers Trumpbour was found guilty of perjury his sister has never since the begin the unhappy affair said anything to either the American or French press. Mr. Deacon, on the contrary, has never Mr. Deacon, on the contrary, and sever ceased receiving reporters and has paid cor-tain journais to publish garbled accounts of the affair. He has also succeeded in closing the papers against his wife and her triands.
